THE U. S. CRUISER PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Saturday.—The giant armored cruiser Pennsylvania, named by the daughter of the State's senior Senator and political leader, was launched at the yards of the William Cramp Ship and Engine Building Company to-day. It was witnessed by the largest and one of the most distinguished assemblages that had ever gathered in the Cramp yards. More favorable weather could not have been desired, and as the flag bedecked sea fighter glided down the ways she was greeted by the acclamations of thousands of specta-

Under the towering prow of the Pennsylvania was erected a heavy timber superstructure, from which nearly two thousand specially invited guests witnessed the launching. From the main stand rose a smaller platform, upon which stood the christening party, including Miss Coral Quay, daughter of Senator M. S. Quay, the ship's sponsor; Senators Quay and Penrose, Governor Pennypacker, Mayor Weaver, Rear Admirals Sigsbee and McVieille, Charles H. Cramp, Edwin S. Cramp and several women.

nia, the heads of the various navy department bureaus, Captain Alexander Bouthkoff, Russian Naval Attaché; Lieutenant Commander I. Takashita, Japanese Naval Attaché; Cheikh Bey, Turkish Minister to the United States, and Lieutenant Commander Sabri Bey and Lieutenant Ali Bey of the Ottoman navy.

The Pennsylvania has twin screws, vertical triple expansion engines and boiler of the Niclausse type, which are required to develop a mean speed of twenty-two knots an hour for four hours. The engines are expected to develop a collective indicated horse power of 33,000. The contract calls for the hull and machinery of the Composed of New York National Guardsmen, a rifle team will represent this State in the contest for the new national trophy which will be competed for at Sea Girt, N. J., for the first time September 8 and 9 next.

Colonel N. B. Thurston has already selected five members of the team, which will consist of twelve men and several reserves. The five men who have been selected are Lieutenant A. E. Wells, Lieutenant K. K. V. Casey, Sergeant G. Doyle and Sergeant A. S. Corbett. Seventy-first regiment, and Corporal W. B. Short, of the Seventh regiment.

Applications for remaining places on the team will be held at Creedmoor next Wednesday and Friday. The team when completed will leave for Sea Girt in command of Colonel Thurston on the afternoon of September 2. Quarters have been obtained at the Beach House.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.]
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Saturday.—An academy which has been in session since recently issued to the corps of midshipmen which will have no effect on their future careers and will teach them more than that they are under the most stringent military rules and regulations. The superintendent's order says, in effect, that as the present fourth class has been in the Academy long enough to learn military discipline and become fully acquainted with the ins and outs of the academy, they will be given a general review of the tenets of all demerits given to the midshipmen for violations of rules. A neglect of duty will be considered a demerit, and a midshipman has more than three hundred demerits, the number allowed to the plebe. If he will be allowed to smoke, he will be permitted to resign.

Demerits given to members of this class up to August 1 were given for the following reasons: 1. Neglect of duty, but any dereliction of duty will be punished with demerits, and possibly other means. 2. Smoking. 3. Drinking. 4. First given demerits, varying from fifteen to twenty. 5. Second given demerits, varying from twenty to thirty. 6. Third given demerits, varying from thirty to forty. 7. Fourth given demerits, varying from forty to fifty. 8. Fifth given demerits, varying from fifty to sixty. 9. Sixth given demerits, varying from sixty to seventy. 10. Seventh given demerits, varying from seventy to eighty. 11. Eighth given demerits, varying from eighty to ninety. 12. Ninth given demerits, varying from ninety to one hundred. 13. Tenth given demerits, varying from one hundred to one hundred and ten. 14. Eleventh given demerits, varying from one hundred and ten to one hundred and twenty. 15. Twelfth given demerits, varying from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and thirty. 16. Thirteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and thirty to one hundred and forty. 17. Fourteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and forty to one hundred and fifty. 18. Fifteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and sixty. 19. Sixteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and sixty to one hundred and seventy. 20. Seventeenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and seventy to one hundred and eighty. 21. Eighteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and eighty to one hundred and ninety. 22. Nineteenth given demerits, varying from one hundred and ninety to one hundred and one hundred.

No. 74 FIFTEENTH STREET, N. W.,
WASHINGTON, D. C. Saturday, July 11.

The development of the land and water situation has given a new tail to the old story of Hitchcock's place in the Cabinet. On this point it may be said with authority that Secretary Hitchcock has the full confidence of the President. When President Roosevelt came to the White House he told a friend that Secretary Hitchcock did not appeal to him. Secretary Hitchcock's enemies, among them certain western senators, have been anxious to force him to get him out of the Cabinet, but Secretary Hitchcock stoutly weathered the storm. The President told another friend that at first he had not understood Mr. Hitchcock, but when he came to know him he appreciated his thorough honesty and sincerity of purpose. That is the President's opinion of him this day.

Secretary Hitchcock's friends are persons characterized by the following qualities: 1. They are men of high character. 2. They are men of high ability. 3. They are men of high integrity. 4. They are men of high courage. 5. They are men of high loyalty. 6. They are men of high patriotism. 7. They are men of high honor. 8. They are men of high respectability. 9. They are men of high standing. 10. They are men of high influence. 11. They are men of high reputation. 12. They are men of high fame. 13. They are men of high glory. 14. They are men of high honor. 15. They are men of high respectability. 16. They are men of high standing. 17. They are men of high influence. 18. They are men of high reputation. 19. Government ammunition of the Frankfort Arsenal manufacture is roundly condemned by the sharpshooters of the National Guard who used it at Creedmoor in the rifle competition.

All the riflemen were served with the ammunition in question, and it is asserted that almost all the bullets were picked up at the butts after the firing frequently showed that they were also defective.

It was seen that they had not taken the rising.

There are three conduct grades at the Academy. If a midshipman is in the first grade it means that he has not received more than twenty-five demerits, and he is allowed all liberty which is given. If he is in the second grade, a midshipman who has received more than this number of demerits, and with land frauds coming up next week at Hobart, Okla., the Interior Department confident it will be publicly demonstrated that the government is not taking any chances with the persons accused. At the office of the Secretary of the Interior great stress is laid on the fact that much greater care is being taken in the expenditure of public land money for public improvements in various Oklahoma towns than in the past.

Secretary Hitchcock, said to-day that the "graters" had committed much greater fraud than the public lands.

Secretary Hitchcock expects the charge that he had withheld public land money from just expenditure and caused the government to lose money in which his friends were interested, to prove a boom orag on his account.

lawyer, who had appeared to defend him, also promised he would be responsible should his brother violate his word.

Warned by Someone.

Some one, however, did advise Mrs. Wilson that her husband was on the track, and she at once left St. Gallion, going to Aix les Bains, while the nurse and child, under the guidance of Raibül, were taken story, and as soon as Dreyfoss heard the name of Raibül mentioned in connection with the child and nurse he exclaimed:—

"Why, I know all about them. I saw them in a train a week ago, with Raibül and a nurse, who I thought was French."

Wilson, when he had failed to learn anything from Raibül, had offered the Swiss police a reward, and if they would locate the child and its attendant, and they, anxious to obtain the reward, were working assiduously when the revelation of Dreyfoss came.

The Consul hurried Dreyfoss to the hotel where watched, went to the Chatham Hotel in Paris.

Wife Brought Him the Boy.

There four days after he had left St. Gallion his wife brought him the child. They remained in Paris that night, and the following day went to London, where they arrived at the Victoria Station, half-past seven o'clock the following night.

There at the Hotel Royal Farnes, Berlin's, another conference took place, in which it was determined that Mr. Wilson should be given possession of the child immediately on its arrival here, and, as

On a rough mountain road to secluded hotel five miles from St. Gallen, the two men had a short stay at Aïx les Bains, went back to London, where she remained several days. Wilson meanwhile had gone to St. Gallen where he met Raiblt, the woman who was a lace exporting business by which he was employed, and demanded that she should tell him where Raiblt was. She then told him that Raiblt at first pleased him, but later on he had changed his mind, introduced him to Wilson, and when Wilson had seen Raiblt, he had agreed to come to the United States to meet Wilson's vessel.

Wilson recognized it at once. He told of having seen Raiblt with the nurse and brother at the main station in London before at Zurich.

Challenge for a Duel.

Wilson then told Raiblt at his place of business, and a dramatic scene took place during which Raiblt finally challenged him to fight a duel. Raiblt, with a shrug of his shoulders, said that he would accept the challenge.

Wilson then told Raiblt that he was going to New York, and that he had heard in the United States that Raiblt was still in London, and that he had heard in the United States that Raiblt was still in London, and that he had heard in the United States that Raiblt was still in London.

that he was unaware of the existence of such persons, but was finally forced to admit, it was declared, that he had no knowledge of their whereabouts.

In this statement he persisted, and, baffled, the nurse left the room. When she returned, she found the trunk with his baby's clothes in it, which, in her hurried flight into the rough mountain country, the nurse had been forced to abandon.

Glew Obtained by Consul.

At the hotel, while in conversation with the Deputy Consul General of the United States at St. Gallien, Joseph Simon, one of the men who had been arrested by T. Dreyfoos, who, after Wilson had left the consul, sought to ascertain who Wilson was and of what was said to him, he was finally prevailed on to tell him the

He also refused to reveal the place at which the baby was being detained and Wilson agreed to let him go, but he brought not the revelation that Wilson sought, but Rablil agreed that he would write to Mrs. Wilson at her address in New York, and he would endeavor to advise her that she had better see her husband and make some arrangement to return to the child.

The matter was urgent, and, weary in all probability of the numerous changes of residence she had been forced to make, Mrs. Wilson agreed to let him go, but she told him that she also refused to tell him where the child was, but said if he would go to his hotel in Paris she would tell him, bring it there and surrender it to him.

as soon as possible.

Mrs. Wilson said that night to a representative of the press:

"There has been no reconciliation between my child and myself, and there will be none. I shall proceed to New York, and I shall have no doubt that I will be successful, and that the custody of the child will be awarded to me."

Mrs. Wilson then returned to her hotel on the trip over and saw H. of each other. Her desire in coming over here at this time was to find an opportunity to see her child, and to return to his home in Colorado as soon as possible."

Mrs. Wilson upon leaving the pier was met by H. H. Navarre. Last night when reporter for the Herald called to see her she declined to be seen.

He is now sixty six years old and has spent twenty years of his life in prison. Many of his robberies have been committed in New York. He was recently convicted of taking part in a New York bank robbery and was sentenced to two and a half years in Sing Sing. He was also convicted of burglary in Kingston, N. Y., and went to Dannemora for five years. In 1888 he was convicted of robbing a store in Elmira and was sentenced to three years. Again in 1892 he attempted to rob the house of Alfred Taylor, No. 83 Broadway, and was sentenced to Sing Sing for four years and six months.

Before he had been out of Sing Sing for a year he was arrested by the police in Bridgeport, Conn., and was sentenced to one year and six months. Again, in 1900, he was arrested in New York for picking pockets and was sentenced to six months as that of last Friday night. In this case also he was caught through the aid of a private detective, who had been in the penitentiary for two years and has been out of prison less than a year.

McIntyre, who said yesterday that Mason has probably committed more than five hundred burglaries in the last thirty years and many believe he is a "big fish" in the New York fish market, believes about his career as freely as if it were a legitimate calling. He said he made a great many mistakes in the life of a thief, but that he knew it did not promise
